I don't have any experience installing any linux on it. Can I install win7/64 on it with full performance, or is there a better way? A: The answer from user2831120 is completely correct, and could also be generalized to other models from ECS. I will expand on that. If you connect your hard drive to the motherboard SATA ports, you can use a self-made cooler to avoid damage to your hard drive and the installation of antivirus on your system. This coolers work by spinning the hard drive at a lower RPM then required. Once the hard drive is installed, you can install normal Linux distro, use Wine and download a lot of programs that require Windows. Linux is usually up to 70% faster than Windows when using the same programs. ECS models from CF-Series are special from other models that come with a certain motherboard. ECS CF-Series have an embedded CPU. This can be seen on the back of the unit: The CPU is usually an AMD Athlon 4XXX series, but you can also see Intel Atom, Celeron, Pentium and C-Series processors. If you have a C-Series CPU, you could use a small HTPC application, like Windows Media Center as an excellent desktop environment, with the ability to play YouTube, Hulu, Netflix, iTunes and VUDU. It is also possible to use FreeBSD, OpenBSD, PC-BSD, Debian, Ubuntu, etc. I have installed on a C-Series model an Intel NUC and a small HTPC solution with a Raspberry Pi as the main computer, I am using the NUC as a router, NAS and media server, and my HTPC as a desktop environment. I used a Xeon E3-1200 v5 for the main box, because it has better support for media streaming, besides having lower cost than the C-Series. I have no experience with Linux on ECS C-Series, so I cannot recommend anything. You can do a search for similar questions, but you need to

Surgical treatment of primary hyperparathyroidism. All patients with hyperparathyroidism in whom a parathyroid adenoma is present need to be taken through a thorough preoperative diagnostic work-up to define the precise pathology and its extension. While the traditional operative approach to the patient with symptomatic hyperparathyroidism has been the unilateral adenectomy via a cervical approach, a bilateral exploration has been indicated to: (1) find as many parathyroid glands as possible in order to lower the probability of residual and recurrent hypercalcemia, (2) decrease the risk of persistent or recurrent hypercalcemia by the removal of pathologic parathyroid tissue, and (3) reduce the prevalence of permanent hypoparathyroidism. Further, in patients with endocrine-inactive tumors, reoperation may be indicated to remove new parathyroid glands in the zone of ectopia, to look for diseased or malignant parathyroid tissue in the neck, and to remove and cure or convert the parathyroid neoplasms to a normocalcemic state.

Bengaluru: About 500 young Karnataka state engineers and doctors have on Wednesday joined the Indian National Trade Union Congress (INTUC) and the Confederation of Unions for Economic Justice (CUEJ) in Delhi. The move came after repeated requests from INTUC general secretary P C Gandhi, a Congress (S) leader from Bengaluru, to use their right to join the left-of-centre Congress in unifying opposition to the Bharatiya Janata Party-led central government in Delhi. On Wednesday, Gandhi called on Union minister of state for commerce and industry Ramesh Chand of Congress (S) from Bengaluru to pass on the message of support to young professionals, stating they had to go to Delhi to be united. "I told them not to stay alone. Support them. Don't fear their employment and send them there," Gandhi told Chand. The CUEJ, formed last year, represents more than 2,500 doctors and engineers in Karnataka. The union has paid dint to religious lines, and many of the union's members have come from the Dalit and OBC communities. The move comes after a resolution expressing opposition to the policies of the prime minister, Narendra Modi, was adopted by the Karnataka Pradesh Congress Committee last month. Also in July, an alliance between the INTUC and the CUE
