Path of the Lost is a new, ambitious and surreal action-adventure game, featuring hand-painted 2D graphics and a unique narrative style. It was designed to be played with a controller, so find a friend, grab a lifebelt and jump into the adventure! This is a game from the ground up, which was actually designed to be mobile game platform and the development process will largely revolve around this idea. Trident (the main character) is a jolly, salty, salty sea creature and fish, who was cursed to be this form by the God of the Sea... He walks all over land, gets his kicks on the beach and loves the water, the sea and all the fish and other sea animals. The Story: (Warning: This Game features some Game spoilers if you're not interested in the story) Trident is a friendly, well-meaning fish who was cursed to be a monster, when his father is accused of kidnapping a woman. He took a wrong path in life and was made to serve the Sea God, Orcus. But to make things more complicated, he is also the son of a Princess who was cursed to be a mermaid! So Trident is a half-mermaid and half-fish, and only has 30% of his genes coming from his father! When he is cursed, he needs a magical Trident to wake up, and finds out that he can use the Trident to change the way he looks! Players will get to take control of Trident and follow his story. They'll go through the search of the cursed Trident and freeing themselves from Orcus. When they find the Trident, they need to follow the magical compass to find the way out of the sea and back to the land. The Game-Story continues in a sequel and games will also be released on mobile platforms! Features: - 2D hand-drawn and hand-painted graphics. - Enjoy the game with a controller! - Jump and swim all over the world with the magical Trident. - Get magical powers and abilities by summoning different objects that appear on the screen. - Dodge different obstacles. - 4 different characters to select. - Two different difficulty levels - Great soundtrack. - Dev blogs, interviews and news about this awesome game. - And more! We're looking for 50 beta testers that will get early access to the game's beta and receive feedback from us

What's new in Universe For Sale:

For months I have been getting emails from mainstream scientists in Sweden enquiring about the details for interviewing Dr David Avineen for publication. For those not aware, David Avineen is a renowned scientist who has spent the majority of his career at Lund University in Sweden. He is also professor of plant science and has previously written several books including “Natural Strategies for Resistance” (Editions Copernic, 1995) and "Food and Cancer: From Antioxidation to Vaccination” (World Cancer Research Fund, 2007). He has been invited to speak at the Nobel Peace Prize banquet in 2009 in Oslo, Norway to which he responded; “I do not seek money. I don’t want to take a chair in some prestigious institute or university in this country. I simply wish to spread the benefits of scientific knowledge among students.” When I first contacted him to ask for a brief interview I was met with a shrug. My reply back was that I did not want to interview him, that I was particularly eager to get some news of the health benefits he had done for people with tumours via the use of Oolong Tea. I was told that he did not have time but was interested to hear what I had to say. It became a daily routine of him calling me for information, I never lying or dodging calls, as I wanted him to get all the responses he needed for his book, and to gain his full endorsement. More often than not the conversation would go something like this “This conversation is being recorded, I must go now, David. Best way to reach me”. The next time he called me “I have just returned from a week in London, there was a surprise waiting for me in the letters which arrived as soon as I got back. There will be a short pause, I will call you back”. In the second week the same conversation would take place, sometimes I was assured “It was good to talk to you, David. I will now leave you to it, I have something which I will send you”. But what was happening was he and two other colleagues were asking me for confidential and private responses from my interviews in order to assess the possibilities for publication. Three weeks later he called to say that they were obtaining their responses from 42 interviews, he had them in his possession, but he did not want his book for sale as he did
