Care. this patient.Domino's, a leading international pizza restaurant operator, has issued a nationwide recall for Old England Ham & Pineapple Pizza due to an over-allocation of herbs and an infestation of unwanted bird nesting material. The primary issue appears to be the over-allocation of basil and other herbs used in the preparation of the pizza's base.
Domino's has revealed that due to an over-allocation of herbs, some customer orders could be served with basil on them. "As a precautionary measure, Domino's Pizza NZ has decided to recall some of its Old England Ham & Pineapple pizzas sold in Auckland, Wellington and Dunedin stores. This product has been sold for a few days only," reads a statement on the company's website. "The product's sell-by date is now dated Tuesday 30 June 2017, and the product's best before date is Tuesday 26 July 2017. Recipe for awesome wine-chilled peach pie "The Pizza has a sell-by date of Tuesday 26 July 2017 and best before date of Tuesday 30 July 2017. Domino's Pizza NZ would like to advise customers not to eat the product if the sell-by or best before date has passed." The pizza has been declared free of any other food safety issues and is continuing to be sold in stores. If a customer is served a pizza with basil on it, they are advised to return it for a full refund or request that it be discarded. "No further recall is planned."
