developers.com/showthread.php?t=1335855 Hi mikey108, I am not sure which version of Uberoid you need to download, but the older ones do not work. I am running the most recent firmware as found on Uberoid's website. I am not sure which version of the firmware is the best. I would suggest a search for it on google and doing a search on mbed code. The newest version of the Uberoid firmware says it has support for E-Pads. If you know how to download and install, do it. I am sure you will love it.

Please leave your contact details if you can send me the code. Download the FirmwareInstallInfig from this github link

https://github.com/littlejohn/Uberoid\_APK\_firmware\_installer (you will need to install the app, which contains the CHANGER script if you wish to use it) (The CHANGER script is at a temporary location, but it will copy and modify the contents of the.FWC file for you). Yes. The app will ask you if you would like to install apps from unknown sources. Once you accept and the app has been installed, open it and it will download the required files. Look up your WM8850 model in the Uberoid Compatibility List and get the MODEL.TXT file from there. If you are not able to find the model on the list, then it's probably a bricked device so you may have to consider returning it to the retailer.
