Rainer Swan is a four-piece music act from South London. Rainer Swan has been described as indie and alternative, though their sound is much more complex and progressive than the music coming out of the indie world. In 2008 Rainer Swan signed to 4AD Records, and in April 2010 they released the mini-album World Until When. Rainer Swan are the first band to be signed to 4AD, and signed a two-album deal with 4AD. Rainer Swan are currently recording their third album. Their music is primarily influenced by the music of Autechre, the band of which Mark Pritchard, the drummer in Rainer Swan, is a member. On June 27, 2009, the band released a remix of the song "Bios" by UK band UNKLE. Rainer Swan will play at the Danish Music Week, Copenhagen, Denmark, June 1-6, 2010. Wednesday, June 30, 2010 Ash Ra Tempel is an American experimental rock group formed in Oakland, California in 1967. Their unusual music was influenced by the Japanese improvisation and drone music of avant-garde jazz composer John Coltrane, as well as by the music of Indian classical music. The group was founded by organist/drummer Frank Marshall, and featured David O'List on guitar, John McLaughlin on electric bass, and Victor Wooten on percussion. As a result of their initial improvisational approach, their music has been compared to free jazz, although they rejected the label in favour of the name "free improvisation". Ash Ra Tempel performed their first concerts in April 1968 and was recorded at the San Francisco Zen Center, and were later signed to Columbia Records. After the release of their second album, the band's sound developed further, moving towards a style of complex improvisational rock music that has been called "avant-rock" or " 2edc1e01e8
